Why do I need an RIW card?

Possession of an RIW card is often a mandatory prerequisite set by the Network Operators, Rail Infrastructure Managers, or Principal Contractors in the Australian rail industry. Without this card, individuals may be prohibited from working on rail projects or being able to access rail infrastructure.

Are you RIW JobReady?

Are you prepared for a career in the Rail Industry? If you're uncertain about where to start, or what training you need, RIW Job Ready is here to assist. Our JobReady Service helps individuals and small businesses obtain their RIW card and removes the administration burden, whilst guiding them through the mandatory training required for Rail and Rail Projects work.

In many cases, having an RIW card with the necessary job roles and competencies is crucial for employment in the rail sector. RIW Job Ready simplifies this process, by doing it for you and reducing stress and improving access to job opportunities within the rail industry.

Administration Support

We also provide ongoing administrative support for sole traders and small businesses, offering RIW annual administration support for a nominal fee. This support helps ease administrative burdens throughout the year.

With RIW JobReady, we manage the administration of your RIW card, ensuring compliance on-site for you or your workers. This support ensures cardholders remain compliant and fit for duty, empowering small businesses to meet industry standards and seize job opportunities in the rail sector.

Benefits of RIW JobReady
